Transport Company Gets Maximum Freight Security For Shippers

Vector Transport Approved For $100,000 TIA Performance-Certified Surety Bond

TUPELO, Miss. (December 19, 2009)—Transportation can be a tedious business. And with the major responsibility of freight loads, having real security would be nice. Aware of the need for maximum carrier protection, Vector Transport has recently been approved for a $100,000 TIA Performance Certified Surety Bond.

Under this bond, freight shippers benefit from a level of protection on their shipments typically unheard of in transportation. This surety bond provides additional security for both shippers and carriers and is ten times the industry standard.

"We wanted to let the shippers and carriers know that we were looking out for them," said Joe Estess, President of Vector Transport. "Having been both a shipper and carrier in the past, I understand the needs of both and wanted to cover all bases. So, we got approved for this $100,000 surety bond to make sure that shippers know that they can trust us, and that we're completely above average. This bond gives full umbrella coverage to both parties, in addition to $100,000 contingent cargo protection for shippers."

Estess went on to say that this bond is also a testament to the faith that the company has in their 3-Point Certified freight carriers. "Not only do suppliers get guaranteed carrier quality, but they also can have the assurance that we are behind every one of their shipments. This is the level of service you can expect from a transport company."
